Dr.S.Sankaralingam, assistant professor of Botany, Saraswathi Narayanan College, Madurai the Guest speaker of the program has delivered a lecture on PGPR traits from mangrove Rhizobacteria and its application as biofertilizer. He began the lecture by teaching about positive thinking and listed out various enzymes responsible for plant growth and development. Then he taught the importance of nitrogen and phosphorus in plant growth. He told steps in isolation and identification of bacteria from mangroves and briefly explained about the production of enzyme alkaline phosphatase by isolated bacteria Bacillus sonorensis at various media, pH, carbon source, nitrogen source, sodium chloride concentration, buffers and incubation time. He concluded his lecture by explaining the importance of mangrove forest in the isolation of Rhizobacteria. The interactive concourse ignited the inquisitiveness of participants. At the end, vote of thanks was proposed by Ms.B.Rubiyathul Roja. The informative lecture was concluded with national anthem.
